Family say thanks to mystery donors

A FAMILY wants to thank two anonymous donors who have made their dreams come true.

The Bambers, who live on Haverhill's Meadowsweet Close, launched an appeal for a specialist buggy to help daughters Lily, 5, and Willow, 1, get around.

The girls both suffer from Mitochondrial Disease and Lily, who started primary school last year, can no longer walk unaided.

Just before Christmas, a mystery donor gave £500 – almost the entire cost of the buggy – and a second person donated £100 towards the equipment.

Dad Jamie, 37, said: "It just put the biggest smile on my face that somebody cares that much to do something like this for two little girls."

Jamie and wife Michelle, 32, went to the Newlife Foundation for support in securing the buggy, which cost £599.

Within days of their appeal going public, the money had been pledged to the charity, which supports disabled children with getting equipment.

Michelle said: "I couldn't believe anyone had just given that amount of money."

"I was shocked and surprised and really happy that we weren't going to be waiting as long as we thought."

Little Willow has just started to take her first steps – but her parents are unsure what the future holds for her because of the condition.

Currently, Michelle takes the girls out and about in a normal pushchair – or carries Willow in a sling.

Lily walks using a frame, and also has an electric wheelchair to use at school if necessary.

"This just means that I don't have to worry about [the girls] outgrowing the buggy that I am using at the moment, because we're getting a buggy that will see them through for potentially three-plus years," the mum-of-two said.

Newlife will order the buggy, and it is hoped it will arrive with the family soon.

Michelle and Jamie have also thanked those who made donations to them personally following their initial appeal at the start of December.

This money will now be used towards adapting the Bambers' home to create a downstairs bedroom for Lily.

It will have a wet room attached, and can also be used by Willow in the future if necessary.

Planning permission is being sought.

Michelle added: "Thank you to those people who have come and made donations to us personally – they know who they are."

"A massive thank you to the donors, it's going to make their lives so much easier."

GRATEFUL: The Bamber family.

Julian Flood selected as UKIP's candidate

A HAVERHILL councillor has been chosen as the UKIP constituency candidate for West Suffolk.

Cllr Julian Flood, pictured, who sits on Suffolk County Council for Haverhill Cangle, was voted in by his colleagues at a hustings last night.

The event was held at Haverhill Leisure Centre from 7.30pm.

Cllr Flood has hailed the role as a "great honour" – and has also praised his UKIP colleagues for their support.

He said: "We have a daunting task ahead."

"The next 10 years will shape the future of our country for generations. Rarely has a general election mattered so much."

The appointment means that Cllr Flood will directly compete against Matthew Hancock, West Suffolk's current MP – a conservative – for his seat in the May elections.

Cllr Flood added: "My work as a Suffolk county councillor has shown me that people are desperate for change. UKIP can deliver that change."

Credit union here to help in new year

SUPPORT: Phoebe Chamberlain and Pete Carlisle, above, and the launch of the credit union last year, right.

CHRISTMAS may have just ended – but it's never too early to start thinking about the next one.

This is the message from Eastern Savings and Loans, on Haverhill High Street, following the revelation that an estimated £91 million was spent in Britain's shops ahead of the big event.

The town's credit union branch opened in March last year – and has since helped many families save responsibly, and learn the dangers of illegal lenders.

Managed by Pete Carlisle, the union has started 2015 with the launch of a Christmas savings club to prepare for this year's festive period ahead of time.

A spokesman for Eastern Savings and Loans said: "Members wishing to save for Christmas next year put money into a separate account, they are then given access to the money saved in November of each year.

"Many save whatever they can afford and are often surprised at what is in their account by November.

"This further encourages saving and by the following year, Christmas is mostly covered.

"Eastern has helped many members enjoy a debt free Christmas in the past, and can do the same for you."

Figures have also shown that the Citizens Advice Bureau deals with more than 6,000 debt problems a day throughout the year – with many making paying off debts their new year's resolution.

The credit union is open Mondays and Wednesdays from 10am until 1pm.

Its offices are located in the Havebury Housing Partnership offices.

If you want to contact Mr Carlisle for more information or advice, email him on peteslcu@outlook.com, or call 01440 718460.

Diner owner says: 'We are not for sale'

DEBRA FOX

AN AMERICAN eatery is not for sale – despite a flurry of rumours on social media.

Sam Clark, owner of Haverhill's Route 66 diner, has spoken out after an advert for the restaurant appeared on BusinessesForSale.com, a listings website.

The diner launched in Haverhill High Street in March last year, delighting punters with its promise to provide something different in the town.

Mr Clark has confirmed that the business is "not for sale".

He said: "I had my business valued to secure finance for equipment.

NOT FOR SALE: Route 66 diner

"We are more than happy in Haverhill – trade is increasing month on month and we are doing really well, and grateful for all the customers that we have got."

A spokesman for Intelligent Business Transfer confirmed that the company carried out a valuation on Route 66, but at the request of Mr Clark, the listing has now been removed.

The restaurant, which is open from Monday to Saturday for lunch and dinner, will be closed from January 11 until 22 for a winter break, but in February a range of new menus and offers will be launched, with hot drinks available from a brand new coffee machine.

Mr Clark added: "We are still finding our feet in Haverhill, and we are still a very new business that needs support from the town.

"We hope to see you all when we get back."

Raising a glass for village hall funds

AN EVENING of wine tasting is scheduled for February 20.

Guests are welcome to attend at West Wratting Village Hall.

Tickets are £10 and there

Decision due on former pub

PROPOSALS for a derelict pub will be discussed at a planning meeting today.

St Edmundsbury Borough Council's Development Control Committee will make a decision on plans to PLAY TIME: Lions playing with the trees at Linton Zoo.

Roaring good time for lions as Christmas gifts arrive

LIONS at Linton Zoo have received old Christmas trees as a belated festive treat.

Discarded Christmas trees are being given to the big cats at the zoo, which they like to chew on and play with.

According to the zoo, the trees are one of the favourite toys for the animals and provide them with hours of fun.

They have an effect similar to catnip – a plant of the mint family which can cause cats euphoria.

There have already been a number of donations from individuals – as well as from nurseries which have donated unsold trees – but the zoo is urging more families to drop off their trees.

Dawny Greenwood, of Linton Zoo, said: "Before you throw your Christmas trees on the rubbish pile please spare us a thought.

"Greenery is very important to our animals, so live rooted and growing trees can be given a second chance of life by being planted in one of our animal enclosures or our new woodland area."

She added: "Trees without roots are used to decorate our aviaries and as enrichment for many of our animals, including the lions, tigers and snow leopards.

"The big cats especially love playing with the trees – it seems to be like catnip to them.

"We've had a fantastic response to our appeal already."

Trees can be left at the front gate or on the drive if the zoo is closed.

'End confusion over parking'

DEBRA FOX

YELLOW lines need repainting, signs need changing and roads need resurfacing.

This is the message from a county and borough councillor – who says he has been calling for the work for months.

Cllr Tony Brown, along with fellow councillors Julian Flood and Anne Gower, also asked Suffolk County Council to rectify signs explaining parking regulations on the High Street before new PCSO Kayla Packman started her role in September.

Cllr Brown said: "We put quite a lot of our locality budget money towards a high street PCSO and it sticks in the throat that they can't get the signs right, and make sure the lines are well defined."

Haverhill High Street has restricted access between 10am and 4pm, Monday to Friday. On Saturdays, no access is permitted due to the market.

Signs detailing parking regulations are "ambiguous", Cllr Brown said, with some stating no waiting is allowed between 10am and 4pm, but parking is allowed for 30 minutes between 8am and 10am, and 4pm and 6pm.

CONCERNS: Cllr Tony Brown.

Returning within one hour is permitted.

PCSO Packman, who has handed out more than 500 tickets since September, said the signage should be clearer. "People don't understand it," she said.

"It should say something like 'no parking between 10am and 4pm unless you are disabled, or are a delivery driver."

"I think it needs to be as basic as possible."

Cllr Brown added: "If people understand the signs there will be no argument."

There are no parking restrictions displayed on the street near to Haverhill Arts Centre where there are single yellow lines, and some of the road's yellow lines have not been terminated properly – meaning they cannot be enforced.

Cllr Brown and his colleagues have reported problems with faded yellow lines in Lower Downs Slade and Hamlet Road, and incorrectly terminated lines in Murton Slade.

Concerns have also been raised about road conditions on Mill Road which, after months of complaint, have still not been repaired.

Cllr Graham Newman, cabinet member for roads, transport and planning, said the work is a "matter of priority".

He added: "The road signing in and around the High Street had been reviewed to determine whether it is enforceable and orders have been issued to address any shortcomings.

"Some of the work is complete; other elements are part of the current backlog of minor works that officers are working with [the contractor] to clear as quickly as possible."

Appeal to hand in ecstasy

A "DANGEROUS" batch of ecstasy has been linked to at least two deaths in Suffolk.

Police officers are urging those who know anything about the pills, which are red and have a Superman motif, to get in touch and hand them in.

A 22-year-old man died on Christmas Eve and a 24-year-old man died on New Year's Day after taking them. They were both from Ipswich.

A third death, in Rendlesham, is also being investigated.

Adrian Lubecki, 19, of St Matthews Street, has been charged with being concerned in the supply of controlled drugs.

Two others have been arrested and bailed until February 18.

Similar deaths elsewhere in England, including in the West Mercia area, are also being investigated for potential links.

Anyone with any information across the county is being asked to call Suffolk Police on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Primary school moves forward as academy

DEBRA FOX

A PRIMARY school is celebrating its first week as an academy.

Coupals Primary Academy officially joined the Samuel Ward Academy Trust on January 1 – but the first school day for pupils, in their new uniforms, took place on Tuesday.

Rated as inadequate by Ofsted in May, the school is already "totally different" due to its work with the trust, said David Maguire, acting headteacher.

"Everything is going into improving the quality of the teaching – and that is the key thing," he said.

"We have got three core areas to improve and these are quality of teaching, achievement of pupils and leadership and management."

The trust has seven schools, including Westfield Primary Academy and Churchill Special Free School, and is headed up by Howard Lay.

Mr Lay has hailed Coupals as having "a lot of strengths" through engagement between pupils, staff and parent, and a "caring" ethos.

He said: "I don't know why [the partnership] hasn't happened before."

"It just makes sense – it's quite a bold decision to open your school up and be honest about the weaknesses as well as the strengths."

More than 150 parents attended a meeting in the summer following the publication of the school's Ofsted report – but they were offering support instead of cynicism, Mr Maguire said.

The school is embarking on a new curriculum now it has become an academy, with staff and pupils alike excited to start afresh.

Lessons will be from the International Primary Curriculum, and will further involve parents and resources from across its sister schools.

Teachers from the trust's secondary schools have also been teaching in primaries to develop pupils' skills at a younger age.

Mr Maguire attended Coupals Primary, Chalkstone Middle and Samuel Ward High Schools as a child – while Mr Lay was deputy head.

The executive principal is now full of praise for his colleague whose "honesty" has helped the school's improvement in recent months.

PARTNERSHIP: David Maguire and Howard Lay, above, and the acting head with pupils Colby, Molly, Evan and Evie, right.

"You cannot improve the quality of teaching without strong leadership, and David brings that," Mr Lay said.

"He is open, honest and direct – and that's already having a major impact on the school."

But what's next?

"By the end of the year the amount of teaching which is consistently good across the school will be much higher because of the personal development that has gone into staff," the primary's headteacher said.

"We are already seeing the projections for our Year 6 results will be better than last year, and I think we will be in a much stronger position at the end of the year in every sense."

It is also expected that the school will be "well out" of its current Ofsted category in the next 12 months, Mr Lay added.

Your view on school places

A PROPOSED admissions policy for Suffolk's schools needs your opinion.

The county council is encouraging parents across the county to take part in a consultation, which was launched this week.

A number of changes have been proposed for admissions in the 2016/17 school year, including introducing a second round of admissions.

To view the documents visit suffolk.gov.uk/schools, write to Georgina Beard, Suffolk County Council, Endeavour House, 8 Russell Road, Ipswich, IP1 2BX, or email admissions consultation@suffolk.gov.uk.

Swap sugar to lose weight

FIGURES have revealed that more than 30 per cent of Suffolk children in their last year of primary school are overweight or obese.

The county's public health team is backing "sugar swaps" in the new year in a bid to clamp down on diet.

Overweight children are more likely to become overweight or obese adults – but limiting consumption early is a key way to combat this.

Simple changes which can be made include swapping sugary cereal for plain or wholewheat, choosing sugar free drinks, and having low fat yoghurts instead of ice cream.

Visit sugarswaps.change4life.co.uk to register.

Slimmers raise funds for Sally Army

A GROUP of fundraisers helped to pay for 30 Christmas dinners in Haverhill.

Members of the town's Slimming World groups pooled their loose change in aid of the Salvation Army.

Many members also attended a special festive disco to top up the total.

Their efforts raised £290 for the organisation – which helped to pay for Christmas dinners in the town which was attended by 30 people.

This year, the group's members have lost a combined 1,216 stone – the equivalent weight of four and a half black cabs.

KINDNESS: Jo Johnson, Captain Valerie Morgan and Tania Watson.

Police decide on new priority

ANTI-SOCIAL behaviour, fly tipping, and excess noise have been chosen as a new police focus.

Haverhill's Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) have decided on a new priority following the end of the festive period – which saw officers carry out additional patrols, visit supermarkets and raise drink-drive awareness.

The "festive clampdown" was voted for in December by members of the public at the quarterly SNT meeting.

Now, officers will focus on multi-occupancy properties on Harewood Terrace, Linton Place and Glemsford Place – which are all owned by one landlord.

Inspector Peter Ferrie, policing commander for Haverhill, said: "I looked at the votes that came in on the night and the next two [priorities] were tied with 16 votes each.

"I just thought [this priority] was a little bit more specific which is what all of them should be."

One of the properties is on the Clements Estate, and the other two are on the Chalkstone Estate.

Haverhill's police enjoyed an "exceptionally quiet" Christmas and New Year period, Inspector Ferrie said, with no "night time economy crimes" on Christmas Eve – and "no recorded crime whatsoever" on Boxing Day.

"It's the first time I can remember Haverhill not having any crime at all on a single day," he added.

An arrest was made outside Bar Vue on December 28 for common assault, and a further arrest was made in the same place on New Year's Day for affray.

Sgt Matt Gilbert, of the SNT team, said the priority had a "good response" from members of the public.

At the December meeting, the public also voted for alleged drug taking and anti-social behaviour in certain areas, including the recreation ground, and inconsiderate and illegal parking in a number of streets.

So far, around 60 patrols have been carried out on the recreation ground, but there are "no issues" so far.

SNT officers have issued community surveys for people to report problems, and have spoken to local people about their concerns.

The police have written to Suffolk County Council to request that some road markings are re-painted "urgently" to combat parking problems.

New boot sale event launched by

A MONTHLY indoor car boot sale has started in Haverhill.

Masterminded by the town's Slimming World groups, the sale will take place on the first Sunday of each month at the New Croft, on Chalkstone Way.

Every sale will be in aid of a different charity – with January's event raising money for the Haverhill Befriending Scheme.

Tania Watson, consultant, said: "We raised £107 for the Befriending Scheme."

"People can come along and book a table and as long as it's legal they can sell it."

February's event, to be held on the first of the month, will raise money for the British Heart Foundation. Tables cost £10 to reserve, and each event will run from 2pm until 4pm. For more information, and to book a table contact Tania Watson on 07974565229.

Logistics firm wants to install fuelling unit

A LOGISTICS company has applied for planning permission for a refuelling unit.

Culina, on Haverhill's Icen Way, has sent in plans to St Edmundsbury Borough Council for a Bio-LNG refuelling unit which would include a gas tank, pump and dispenser.

The part of the company's site proposed for the new facility is currently used as parking for HGVs and trailers.

There are also diesel refuelling and truck wash facilities there.

If approved, the company, which works primarily with food and drink manufacturers across the country and in Europe, would install a storage tank to refuel trucks.

The firm said the trucks would park alongside the station and use a "pre-programmed" fuel card or key fob.

Gas would be delivered to the station once or twice a week, it said.

Culina's site, which is near to the A1017, has more than 23,000 pallet locations and 191,000 square feet of chilled warehouse.

The company deals with between 250,000 and 360,000 cases a day and receives up to 3,000 pallets.

Thank you for helping make day special

ON behalf of The Salvation Army, I would like to thank the people of Haverhill for their generosity to us over the Christmas period, which enabled us to provide Christmas dinner for those who would otherwise have spent the day alone.

The day began with worship as we adored the One who came to save us. Then we enjoyed a tasty meal together. After dinner we were well entertained by Richard's Magic Show. Mayor Roger Andre also visited us and as well as helping with the drying up, also distributed boxes of biscuits. Thank you to all who contributed and especially to our team of willing volunteers who cooked and served us.

Make resolution one to remember

WE know that disabled people are much less likely to be in employment than the rest of the UK population.

The latest research from Leonard Cheshire Disability is therefore not surprising.

The charity has found that nearly three quarters (73%) of the public feel that disabled people should be given more opportunities to find work.

This is why we launched our new programme Change100 which matches talented disabled students with some of the UK's leading companies.

Since we launched the programme last year, we have had excellent feedback from leading employers on the calibre of the students, and all those seeking work have secured employment. Applications are now open for disabled students from universities across the UK to apply for our 2015 Change100 programme.

If you are studying or have just graduated, visit: www.

leonardcheshire.org/change100 to find out more about this exciting opportunity. The deadline for applications is January 30, 2015. Make this New Year's resolution one to remember.

Children 'let it go' at singalong Frozen performances

DISNEY royalty Anna and Elsa could be spotted at Haverhill Arts Centre this week.

The popular characters, who were actually some of the town's children in disguise, rounded off their Christmas holidays with a special singalong of Frozen.

The event saw the children letting it go, building snowmen and dreaming of summer as they belted out their favourite songs from the film, which was released in 2013.

Nick Keeble, arts and leisure manager, said: "It was a great atmosphere."

"A really joyful occasion with lots of excited children who sang their hearts out."

The diehard fans had their princess costumes down to a tee - with some donning carrot noses and antlers to become Sven the reindeer and Olaf the snowman.

Singalong versions of the film were shown last Friday, and on Monday of this week.

Spreading the word overseas

A HAVERHILL native is encouraging local companies to get involved in a Canadian business venture.

Mark Allard, who formerly worked at the town's Cineworld branch, has launched Tattoo Arts Film Festival overseas.

It will be held in April in Saskatoon.

The event – which is the first tattoo genre film festival for Canada – is in need of sponsors, with Mark calling on his home town to get involved.

He said: "Haverhill and Suffolk-based businesses that wish to gain promotional projection to an international audience and an attentive Canadian audience alike, can take advantage of promotional perks on offer in return for funding Tattoo Arts Film Festival's promotions and advertising campaign."

Businesses who get involved could see their logo on all final poster artwork, and be advertised on the big screen before the play of a feature film.

Individuals who would like to be sponsors will also see their name added to a credit sequence, which will play before the festival's final movie.

New look at plans for flats development after changes

VIEW: The homes would be built behind the white garages in Howard Close.

DEBRA FOX

DEVELOPMENT proposals which "disgusted" nearby families have been resubmitted following changes.

Plans for 15 flats off Haverhill's Burton End were initially submitted to St Edmundsbury Borough Council in September.

Residents living on nearby Howard Close, Old Rope Walk and the Old Pumping House submitted formal objections to the plans – which were altered shortly before Christmas.

Speaking last year, some residents living on Howard Close told how the new homes would impact on their lives, and raised concerns about wildlife, flooding and privacy.

The homes, which are proposed by Prime Crest, would be accompanied by associated parking.

There are already two blocks of affordable flats on the same site.

A spokesman for the company confirmed changes had been made to address "concerns" raised by planning officers in December.

FEARS: The view onto the site from the garden of 19 Howard Close.

He said: "Three two bedroomed apartments have been substituted by three smaller one bedroomed apartments, thus reducing both the footprint of the building and the overall accommodation total."

"The flat roofs have been changed to traditional pitched roofs similar to those in the neighbouring properties in both Howard Close and Anglian Place."

"The external materials have also been revised to red brickwork above a ground floor of render, again to reflect the neighbouring properties.

"Additional screening has also been introduced in the form of extra tree planting."

Consultation is running until January 26.

A council spokesman added: "Depending on the outcome of that consultation, the plans may be decided next month either by committee or by officers under delegated powers."

AT RISK: Haverhill's children's centres On Track and Cartwheels. On Track could merge with Cartwheels if councillors vote in favour.

Decision due on centres merger

DEBRA FOX

A LONG awaited decision on the future of Suffolk's children's centres is to be made at the end of the month.

Last summer, the county council revealed consultation papers which proposed some centres merged with others.

This would ensure that the most necessary services were provided for families, and save money, the council said.

In Haverhill, one of two centres was earmarked to merge with the other – but they are on opposite ends of town.

It has been proposed that On Track, in Strasbourg Square, merge with Cartwheels, on Greenfields Way.

As previously reported, the town's three county councillors – Tony Brown, Julian Flood and Anne Gower – are against the merge and entered objections.

Suffolk County Council's cabinet was supposed to make a decision in December, but it was delayed so councillors could fully understand a report made by Frank Field MP.

Cllr Gordon Jones, cabinet member for children's services, said: "I want to ensure that any changes we make maximise opportunities to positively influence the lives of children and their families. I am sure they will understand the need to take more time to enable this to happen."

Responses from families during the consultation period also had to be looked at.

The cabinet will meet on January 27.

Major incident at Addenbrooke's

ADDENBROOKE'S Hospital has declared a major incident.

The Cambridge hospital trust has been forced to activate major incident plans, meaning operations will be cancelled and consultants will work for longer hours to free up beds and discharge patients.

Dr Keith McNeil, chief executive of Cambridge University Hospitals (CUH), said the incident was declared at 7pm on Tuesday.

He said: "Since New Year's Eve CUH has been under extreme pressure and for the past two days we have been in critical internal incident mode."

"We have declared a major incident. This is due to unprecedented levels of demand on our services with especially high numbers of frail elderly patients, combined with a record level of patients whose medical care is finished and whose discharge is delayed."

Work starts on town play areas

TWO play areas are being revamped for the Easter holidays.

St Edmundsbury Borough Council started work today at Quendon Place and Haverhill Recreation Ground.

Old equipment will be replaced in a scheme costing £150,000.

The recreation ground play area will be finished by the end of March, and it is hoped that Quendon Place will be completed by early February.

Cllr Sarah Stamp, cabinet member for leisure, culture and heritage, said: "Both of these play areas are popular and have served the local community well over the years."

"The equipment is now old and in need of replacement."

The current play area on the recreation ground will be kept open until the new one is finished.

Family starts 2015 with a very special delivery

A SPEEDY delivery was on the cards for one couple on New Year's Day.

Lyndsey and Luke Stephens, of Sible Hedingham, welcomed their new daughter Felicity at 10.30am on January 1.

The little treasure, who weighed 10lbs 9oz, arrived 11 days late – just as mum Lyndsey decided it was time to book an induction.

Lyndsey, 35, called Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge at around 8am on New Year's Day to book herself in that afternoon at 2pm.

Shortly afterwards her contractions started.

The couple arrived at hospital at around 9.40am, just in time for Felicity to be born.

Lyndsey, who is originally from the North East, said: "She was supposed to be a Christmas present for us, but she kept us waiting."

The couple also visited the hospital on Christmas Day – but Felicity had given her parents a false alarm.

Their daughter is an addition to the family of four – with older brothers Henry, 7, and Jimmy, 5, excited to meet their new sister.

Luke, 36, told the News that he delivered the couple's 5-year-old son at home because Lyndsey's labour was so quick.

He was talked through the process over the phone while they waited for an ambulance.

Paramedics arrived at their home around quarter of an hour after the birth.

He added: "I promised I would get her to the hospital this time."

CELEBRATION: Lyndsey and Luke Stephens with baby Felicity.

£4m boost for town cycle links

MORE than £4 million is due to be spent on improving cycling links between Haverhill and Cambridge.

The latest announcement in the Greater Cambridge City Deal reveals plans to spend £4.8 million on a cycling and walking network along the corridor between the city, Haverhill and Saffron Walden.

Earmarked as a "priority", the project forms part of the five-year programme addressing what the first £100m will be spent on.

It is hoped that the scheme will ensure good access between residential developments and employment centres – many of which cannot be accessed without a car.

Work on the cycleway is expected to start this year, at the earliest – with the soonest completion in 2016.

A number of reserve projects have also been picked out as part of the deal – including a bus priority route on the A1307 and an additional park and ride site.

Costing an estimated £36 million, the bus priority would be provided at "congestion points" on the road.

Transport interchanges would be set up at key locations in the corridor making Haverhill "more attractive" and supporting planned housing developments in the town.

An additional park and ride site, costing £7.2 million, would be located between Linton and the A11.

It is hoped it would reduce car trips into Cambridge.

The Greater Cambridge City Deal Joint Assembly will meet on Monday at South Cambridgeshire District Council from 3.30pm.

Members will be asked to help identify a "prioritised programme" for 2015/16 to 2019/20.

The executive board will then meet on January 28.

The fine art of cider-making is alive and kicking in Stretham, where apple aficionado Charles Roberts brews Pickled Pig Cider in an entirely natural way. Louise Cummings drops in for a taste of the award-winning brew . . .

Appley ever after

IT'S 11am on a chilly Monday morning and I'm drinking cider. Lots of it.

And it's a revelation. My last serious foray into cider was as a spotty teen ("I was 18 guv'nor, honest"), when I'd ingest pints of pub cider, so synthetic it could double up as paint stripper. Often mixed with lager and black-currant, it had a frothy reddish hue and my older brother teased me that it would ferment in my stomach and pickle my organs (siblings can be cruel).

But this cider is in another league. This is the F1 of cider; fruity and delicious, it's devilishly drinkable and 100 per cent natural.

"We don't add any additives, sulphur or nitrogen," Charles Roberts, the brains behind Pickled Pig Cider, tells me.

"We try to make cider the old fashioned way, we don't do modern!" he laughs, handing me a mug of his latest batch of New Season Porker.

"Oh, this one smells like a Sauvignon Blanc," I remark, taking a gleeful sniff and a generous plug. Smooth and ever-so-palatable, with just a hint of fizz, the fruity cider has a luscious after-taste of pear drops.

"That one's made from Worcester Pearmain and Discovery apples," Charles enthuses. "It was only pressed in October, so it's very young. People associate the West Country with cider, but East Anglia's ciders are much more wine-like. West Country ciders tend to be made with traditional cider varieties of apple, whereas East Anglian ciders are generally produced with eaters and cookers so they have a very different flavour."

Father-of-two Charles, who lives in Stretham with his wife Laura and a menagerie of pigs and turkeys, runs his own management consultancy by day, but cider-making is his true vocation, and he's quite the authority. In fact, within minutes of me arriving at his imposing residence, located up a long gravel driveway, he's apologising in advance for blinding me with science.

Fortunately I've swotted up on the delicate process of cider-making (go on, ask me about malolactic fermentation . . .), so when we wander over to the barn where the magic happens, I'm not completely out of my depth.

I'm hit first by the rich fruity aroma of apples, then charmed by the sight of the traditional machinery, from the old wooden presses to the simple tumbler which washes the fruit before its juice is extracted. Everything is done entirely naturally and in line with Pickled Pig's ethos of "staying true to traditional methods and making cider with passion".

"We put the cider into oak barrels, bourbon and whisky casks," Charles explains. "They will be in there for different periods of time depending on the cider. We ferment everything naturally and wait until it is just right. Some ciders are ready in six weeks, but most take three or four months. These will be best between May and September next year."

Wandering past a stack of crates of old English apples that have just been delivered from an orchard in Bourn, soon to be transformed into a batch of Bourn Again, Charles tells me about how Pickled Pig came to fruition.

"I've always loved cider. My mum grew up partly in Somerset, real cider country, which is where I tried my first taste in Bruton. I thought it was wonderful and have enjoyed West Country ciders ever since!" he beams.

"We bought an apple press back in 2001 because we had a couple of apple trees in our garden and our neighbour also had lots of trees, and we worried we were wasting the fruit. We made five gallons of cider the first time."

So how did he master the skills of brewing craft cider? "I read books. I'm passionate about old books so I read all the texts on cider making, some written in the 18th century. I've learnt a lot from the old ways. Sometimes people are too inclined to intervene with things, to try and understand everything to the nth degree and from that knowledge comes the desire to manipulate. Whereas actually, if you understand the basic rules – which they certainly did in the 18th and 19th century – then you know enough to make a very fine cider."

So fine was Charles's fruity creation that it was soon the talk of Camra (Campaign for Real Ale).

"I took a jug of my cider over to The Red Lion pub across the road, because I know the landlord, and a lady from the Ely branch of Camra called Julie tried it. I remember her saying 'Well, I don't usually like cider, but I could drink yours'. She was organising the Ely Beer Festival so we put our first cider into that festival and the feedback was great; people really liked it. So after that we started taking the business a bit more seriously!"

Since then Pickled Pig, named after the family's British Saddleback Pigs, who are rather fond of chowing down on the apple pulp from the barn (which once left them a bit 'pickled', but that's another story), has made between 1,400 and 1,500 gallons of cider each year.

The taste, aroma and complexities of the cider alters with the seasons and apple selections, and there are at least eight quirkily titled tipples, from New Season Porker, a young medium cider made using three apple varieties grown within sight of Ely Cathedral (a fast fermentation captures the natural flavours and aromas of the fruit giving a fresh young appley cider), to Rum Cask, brewed in the autumn using two varieties of local dessert apples and juice from a few Lord Lambourne or Bramley cooking apples to balance acidity.

This one is fermented slowly and stored in an oak barrel used to age and import rum from the Caribbean, with just a smidgeon of brown sugar added. There are also some lovely perries made from traditional pears, which have garnered several awards for the company.

Charles sources his fruit locally, both to keep true to his East Anglian roots and to cut down food miles, the lion's share coming from an ageing orchard owned by Robert and Stuart Norman in Haddenham. "They have an English apple orchard, with lots of old English varieties, many of which are not commercially viable any more. We try and take any fruit that they've got and the upside of that is we get all the old fashioned varieties, things like Ellison's Orange, Pearl, Worcester Pearmain.

IN-CIDER STORY: Charles Roberts of Pickled Pig Cider in Stretham, left

Pictures:
Keith Jones

"The best cider is made from fruit from impoverished trees; the harder life the tree is getting the better cider it produces. That's to do with the nutrient content of the juice," Charles tells me.

"You want the apples to have low nitrogen content as nitrogen feeds yeast and the more there is, particularly in commercial fruit, the faster the fermentation. And when it ferments really quickly, it drives off all the volatile compounds from the juice, so the barn smells lovely but the cider is thin."

"The Normans don't put any fertilizer on the trees so the fruit will ferment more slowly, which is perfect," he explains.

Pickled Pig's popularity has grown steadily over the years, with flagons of the moreish brew on sale locally at Stretham stores, 3At3 Delicatessen and Café and Allgoods Deli in Ely, and the cider stocked at some of the region's real ale pubs. In Cambridge, you can nurse a pint of Pickled Pig at The Haymakers in Chesterton, The Cambridge Blue, The Devonshire Arms, The Kingston Arms and The Red Lion at Histon. While further afield, The Townhouse and The Liberty Belle in Ely, The Railway Arms in Downham Market and Five Miles From Anywhere in Upware are all enamoured with the brand. That's not to mention new Willingham micropub The Bank, and the regular farmers' markets and beer festivals (Cambridge, Norwich, Peterborough), where Charles's traditional thirst-quencher goes down a storm.

"The pubs have been absolutely great. If I make a batch that's exceptionally good, I want to share it straight away because sometimes there will be a window of a few weeks when it will taste amazing, so it needs to get out there and be enjoyed. So I just call them up and say I've got something that's really good and they'll buy into that."

Trudging around in green wellies, proudly showing me this season's crop of Jonga Red and Golden Delicious, and insisting I taste the goods, Charles is clearly very passionate about Pickled Pig. "It's just so wonderful when you get really good fruit and you have the anticipation of wondering what cider it is going to make. And I love the fact the cider changes throughout the year, so the flavour is always different," he smiles.

"We'll often have a glass of dinner because it's nice to pair with food. Some new season ciders you can drink with dessert, maybe a nice apple crumble, because they're sweet enough to offset the acidity of the crumble."

Charles continues to run his management consultancy, but the dream would be to turn full-time cider maker one day. "It's frustrating sometimes to not have as much time to dedicate to it as I would like, but it's a nice hobby at the moment. It's completely different to work; it's great to come home after a long hard day, have a glass of cider and go down to the barn and immediately switch off."

"My son is at university at the moment so when he finishes, I'm hoping he might be interested in taking up the business. That would be nice."

For now, spreading a bit of love for cider-making is reward enough for Charles and his burgeoning enterprise.

"It's why I do it. It's lovely when you make a batch of cider that's absolutely amazing and you see people drinking it and their face lights up and you get that smile and think 'Yeah!' he enthuses.

"It's just wonderful to have resurrected the tradition of great craft cider-making in East Anglia."

COMMON SENSE:
Cllr Simon Cole

Party brings 'new sense' to local government

A NEW political party has been launched for the west of the county by a district councillor hoping to "bring more sense" to local government.

The West Suffolk Independents (WSI) were formed on January 1, with the aim of supporting independent candidates standing in the area.

Cllr Simon Cole, Forest Heath district councillor for Exning, and Andrew Appleby, former district councillor for the Severals in Newmarket are behind the new venture, which will also support those hoping to stand in St Edmundsbury.

Cllr Cole said: "The purpose of WSI is to support Independent candidates standing for election to parish, town and district councils in Forest Heath and St Edmundsbury by means of advice and assistance, including financial assistance, when and if appropriate."

"I was prompted to form the group having become frustrated with party politics and the self interest groups which seem to dog the district councils."

Three WSI candidates are set to stand for election in 2015.

Andrew Appleby, Neil Vollenhoven, a former policeman and licensing officer for FHDC, and Andrew Burton, a BT employee, are all set to stand.

Mr Appleby said: "The aim of the group is to bring more common sense into local government. I frequently felt in my time on FHDC that decisions were being taken without due debate and proper consideration."

DEBRA FOX

Cllr Cole added: "I hope that people will look on this as an opportunity for real change in local government and, by standing for election as – and voting for – WSI candidates, help to ensure that decisions taken by local councils are truly representative and in the best interests of the whole community and are not dictated by party politics."

"The aim of WSI is to bring more common sense – and less party politics – to our district, town and parish councils and act in the best interests of the whole community."

"There is no party whip so members are truly independent and can act as they consider fit and proper for the benefit of residents."

"We will work with anyone and everyone to protect, promote and progress West Suffolk's best interests."

The party are still interested in hearing from people who would like to stand for election in both areas.

Tuneful advice for winter well-being

PEOPLE are being urged to keep themselves fit and healthy this winter – with the help of a festive tune.

Dr Jon Ferdinand penned a helpful song, to the tune of Good King Wenceslas, outlining the advantages of having a well-stocked medicine cabinet, speaking to your pharmacist or calling NHS 111.

Performed by staff and lay members from West Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG), the song was uploaded to YouTube before Christmas.

Dr Ferdinand, who works in Wickhambrook, said: "The Winter Health Tips carol could have a really positive impact on reducing pressures on the health service this winter and we're looking to social media to help spread the message."

the GUIDE

concert

ROYAL Northern Sinfonia makes its Cambridge Corn Exchange debut as part of this year's News-backed Cambridge Classical Concert Series.

ANDREW BURTON spoke to concert director Kyra Humphries about what lies in store...

What does playing the violin mean to you?

I find music completely sustaining. Words just can't express it. With music, you can experience everything, from joy and despair to playfulness and excitement. It gives you the chance to express all of those emotions, and to do it communally, which seems increasingly important these days as we all seem so busy. I really enjoy creating music with a group of people.

This performance has no conductor. What difference does that make?

It means that all the musicians have a little more responsibility than usual. Everyone needs to be really tuned in to what's going on and to adjust musically to how their fellow musicians are playing. We all have to be really listening and contributing. We all do this anyway when a conductor is present but without a conductor it heightens the way we all listen.

How do you manage to play violin and direct the ensemble at the same time?

We play together all the time; we're a very close-knit group. We are the only 'contract' chamber orchestra in the country, which means we are all salaried, rather than being hired per concert. So we know each other very well, both musically and personally. This makes it easier to respond to how people are playing. We are a team and it really helps that we understand one another before we even start.

Tell me about the programme you'll be playing on the night.

I've always loved Mozart. I grew up listening to Mozart operas. He's my Desert Island composer. The Violin Concerto I'll be playing (No. 4) definitely has operatic characters in the themes. It's always a joy to play Mozart. His music appears incredibly simple but at the same time is very complex. The Saint-Saëns' Cello Concerto No.1 which soloist Natalie Clein will be playing is an example of a composer wearing his heart on his sleeve. I love that concerto; it's very youthful and exuberant which in a way links it to the Mozart pieces we'll be playing. Barber's Adagio for Strings is hugely expressive, and Mozart's Symphony No 29, which ends the concert, is a dear old friend for me as it's the first whole Mozart symphony I ever played.

The concert opens with Barber's Adagio for Strings. What is it about this piece that so connects with people?

It's really hard to put it into words. It's quite epic, even though it's quite short. When you get to the climax of the piece, you feel as if you've travelled a long way in a short space of time. It's an extraordinary piece of music, which goes straight to people's emotions. It's also very beautiful.

Can you tell me about Royal Northern Sinfonia as a whole?

We are a very versatile ensemble. Each musician plays chamber music throughout the year and we also do quite a lot of contemporary music such as the 'late mix' sessions at Sage Gateshead where we're based. As a chamber orchestra we play lots of Beethoven, Hadyn, Schumann, Mozart and Brahms. We also play quite a lot of Baroque music, so our musical output is extremely varied.

Do you have any connections with Cambridge?

I have several musical friends who went to Cambridge but I was on the other side; I did a Maths degree in Oxford.

What's the link between maths and music for you?

People always say there's a connection between the two but I'm not sure. They both have a relationship with purity and they are both a language of sorts. But for me, all I know is that I've always loved playing music and have also always loved maths.

What advice would you give to any young, aspiring musicians contemplating a professional career in music?

You need to practice very hard and be very technically able because these days it's very competitive. But really, I would advise people to remember that it's the music that's the most important thing: if the music isn't living and breathing and expressive then no matter how good your technique is, it won't mean anything. You've got to 'speak' to your audience, and speak personally through your music when you play. Try to find your voice and stay true to what that is. It's also really important to listen to lots of music and lots of different artists. Remain focused but also aim to keep musical breadth.

If you could take yourself back in time and be present at the first performance of any piece of classical music in history, which would you choose?

The Rite of Spring by Stravinsky. That whole period was so extraordinary. It was a time when music was changing very rapidly. The combination of the art, the dance and the music at that first performance must have made for an electrifying night. Stravinsky is one of my top five composers; I think he has everything. He also wrote brilliantly about music and art. He wrote about how you need boundaries and structure in order to be free and he really understood the connection between discipline and artistic expression. That really resonates with me: you can't have freedom by simply being wild and disorganised; you need some order in your life, in your work and in your art in order to be the most expressive you can be. He wrote a series of little essays about this and so another piece of advice I might offer aspiring musicians is to read those essays! If I went further back in history, it would be the Beethoven Violin Concerto. There are accounts of people interrupting the piece, clapping and booing. It's hard now to imagine those days of concert-giving and what it must have been like! It must have been such a wild experience and the music must have been sublime.

■ Free talk: Local music expert James Day will host a pre-concert talk at 6pm at Cambridge City Hotel – free to concert ticket holders.

See Odell at forest concert

INDIE crooner (and former boyfriend of Taylor Swift – allegedly) Tom Odell, is the second act announced to perform at Thetford Forest in July as part of the Forestry Commission's Forest Live summer music series.

The Another Love singer, with his floppy blond hair and introspective, lovelorn lyrics has been booked to play on the strength of winning the BRITs Critics' Choice Award 2013, as well as his debut album, Long Way Down, which claimed the number 1 spot on its release, and earned him the accolade Songwriter of the Year at the 2014 Ivor Novello Awards.

Extensive touring ensued (including an electric performance at Cambridge Corn Exchange), and more recently the 24-year-old covered Real Love by John Lennon for the weepy John Lewis Christmas advert featuring Monty the penguin.

He's currently back in the studio recording his new album and said: "This will be a whole new experience for me. I can't wait to bring my live show to the woods and I hope to see you there."

■ Tom Odell, High Lodge, Thetford Forest, Sunday, July 5, gates open at 6pm. Tickets £34.50 (plus £3.45 booking fee) from 03000 680400 / forestry.gov.uk/music.

Walking in winter

It's time to put down those left-overs, don your boots and take a bracing walk through a winter garden bursting with vibrant stem colour, interesting barks, blossoming bulbs and wafts of winter scent.

Some walks should provide plenty of inspiration to gardeners. RHS curators Colin Crosbie, from RHS Garden Wisley in Surrey, and Paul Cook, from RHS Garden Harlow Carr in North Yorkshire, offer their own favourite winter gardens to explore...

Paul Cook recommends: RHS Garden Harlow Carr, North Yorkshire (www.rhs.org.uk)

"This year at Harlow Carr we've extended our existing winter walk, which runs east to west to catch the best of the morning and late afternoon sun which lights up the fiery stems and outlines the sculptural shapes of the bare trees. Clipped yew and a backbone of conifers and berrying shrubs lend a formal tone to the vibrant cornus and salix stems, Iris reticulata and daphnes under-planted with heathers. The walk becomes less formal as it leads into the beautiful mature woodlands, where giant trees are outlined against the wintry sky and snowdrops, winter aconite cluster below and around boulders cloaked in moss and lichens."

Dunham Massey, Cheshire (www.national-trust.org.uk)

"Dunham Massey provides a much-needed burst of scent and colour to walkers and garden lovers alike in the coldest months. Glowing-stemmed silver birches, acers and dogwoods are set off by shrubs and evergreens and, after Christmas, a mass of snowdrops, iris and cyclamen carpet the ground. Ornamental Japanese trees mingle with witch hazels and scents waft about the garden."

Cambo Gardens, Scotland (www.camboestate.com)

"Plenty of winter gardens are known for their snowdrops, but at Cambo in Scotland, they do things a little differently. A beautiful walled garden where the herbaceous plantings and grasses are left standing, delicate seedheads and stems outlined in frost, is a great start. It's the 70 acres of beautiful deciduous woodland full of snowdrops that is the real star attraction though. Meandering through them in late winter

by Hannah Stephenson

and early spring along the woodland stream is a pleasure not to be missed."

Colin Crosbie recommends: RHS Garden Wisley, Surrey (www.rhs.org.uk)

"Our new winter walk runs through the most accessible part of Wisley, providing 10 points of interest for visitors to amble along and discover. The path winds around the lake, which is very still and reflects the trees and colourful stems. On clear days, the blaze of flame coloured cornus, salix and white-stemmed brambles are mirrored back in the water – doubling the effect. Winter is a real spectacle of glowing berries and flowers, with beautiful sweet scents, glossy peeling barks, sculptural trees and bulb circles."

Bodnant Garden, North Wales (www.national-trust.org.uk)

"Bodnant is another new winter garden and is well worth a visit. Its setting looking over the River Conwy and towards the Snowdonia range is hard to top and provides a glorious backdrop to the botanical collection. The new winter garden is set in a slight hollow so that it keeps the fragrant scents of daphnes and lonicera cupped within it and the low winter sunlight catches the vibrant stems of cornus and rubus. It also has a huge collection of snowdrops."

Colesbourne Park, Gloucestershire (opens January 31) (www.colesbournegardens.co.uk):

"The snowdrop collection at Colesbourne Park is probably the finest in England. But this garden has more than just snowdrops. Its well laid-out beds are also full of primulas, hellebores, cyclamen, crocus, snowflakes and aconites to add winter interest. It is ringed with woodland full of beech, Norway spruce, sycamores and maples and a small – and famously blue – lake makes for pretty viewing. Don't miss the magnificent drift of Galanthus 'S. Arnott' that makes Colesbourne famous."

Six vital winter safety tips

STAYING safe on the roads in winter is not just about driving carefully, it's about planning for situations that may arise due to bad weather or other people's poor driving.

To make sure you are safe and well should you get stuck in bad weather, or even a lengthy traffic jam, here are six simple life-savers...

1. The most basic and one of the easiest tips to staying safe on the roads in winter, and any other time of the year, is to keep hydrated. A bottle of water in the car can make the difference between a long but comfortable stretch in the car and a boring, headache-filled endurance test.

Try to keep a large bottle of water in the cabin, but not in the boot where it could freeze. Also, refresh the water regularly, so it is pleasant to drink and it keeps the bottle topped up. You could also carry a flask of tea, coffee or soup to warm you up if you become stuck in snow or traffic.

2. Food is also vital to keep in the car in case of an emergency. Rather than sandwiches, keep a stock of food that will last for a long time in the car and is full of energy such as chocolate bars and nuts. For fresh food, fruit is great as it gives a slow release of energy and comes in a natural wrapper. 3. When you have the dining options taken care of, you also need to think about staying warm. Using the car's heater is fine when you're driving, but it might not always be available, if you break down for instance. A good winter coat is a must, but also think about layers as they will keep you warmer even when sat still. A couple of fleeces are ideal to pack in the boot, while a hat and gloves are also essential. You could also consider packing a blanket to wrap around yourself if you know you are going to be stationary for a long time. Even so, try to keep moving regularly if it's safe to get out of the car.

4. Another vital item of clothing is what you put on your feet. High heels might be perfect for the office, but wellies or a pair of walking shoes will be more use in a snow drift. Make sure these shoes have good grips and are waterproof as cold, wet feet will make you feel much worse.

5. Getting stuck in snow or on icy roads is common in winter, so a tow rope is essential in any car's winter kit bag. You might never need it yourself, but it could help you be the Good Samaritan to help another driver get unstuck.

Follow the instructions on the tow rope packet and use it safely. Make sure your own car is always able to get going too so you don't become part of the problem while trying to help others.

6. Finally, one of the easiest things to put in your car for winter is fuel. Do not risk running out of petrol or diesel by letting the fuel needle hover into the red. As soon as the tank drops into the half empty zone, fill up. It might mean more frequent fuel stops in the winter months, but it also means you will never worry about keeping the engine running to stay warm and dry if you get snowed in on a journey.

Vauxhall mans up the Adam with Grand Slam option

VAUXHALL'S top-spec Adam Grand Slam will make its UK debut at Autosport International 2015 next Thursday (until Sunday) at the NEC, Birmingham.

Previewed at last year's Geneva and Frankfurt Motor Shows, the Adam Grand Slam features slick design and a spirited 1.4-litre turbo (150PS) powertrain. It also gets a specially-tuned chassis and a VXR braking system.

With 150PS and 220Nm of torque, the new version of the 1.4-litre Turbo ECOTEC unit in the Adam Grand Slam boasts a specific power output exceeding 100PS/litre. It is a turbocharged, high performance unit derived from the Adam's existing four-cylinder, 1.4-litre engine, that has been exclusively developed for the Adam

SLICK: Vauxhall's Adam Grand Slam can be ordered soon

Grand Slam.

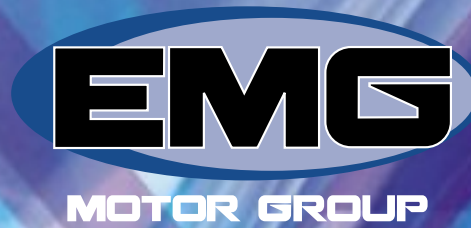

The front lip spoiler, side sill moldings and an extended rear bumper cut-out with a visible, bold exhaust tailpipe make the bodywork appear more muscular than a standard Adam. A total of ten body paint choices and four further roof combinations are available with the Red 'n' Roll roof design reserved exclusively for Adam S customers. The distinctive rear spoiler above the rear window and the special Adam logo on the C pillars complete the look.

Inside the vehicle, the driver and front passenger can choose between four different seat arrangements, three of which are exclusively available for this Adam variant, including the Recaro Performance seats in Morrocana or nappa leather. The interior reflects the Red'n' Roll design in many ways, with the optional leather package including black and red steering wheel, gear knob and handbrake in leather or the red and white lighting for the instrument panels and doors.

Orders will open for the Adam Grand Slam later this month.

Woodley optimistic for 2015 prospects

JOE Woodley believes there are exciting times ahead for Haverhill Cricket Club as they begin preparations for the 2015 season.

The club return to pre-season training next week as they look to bounce back from relegation to Division Two of the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship.

There has been a reshuffle in the senior coaching programme and personnel, while Adam Dellar will continue working with the juniors.

"The vast demographic of the club is young, hungry and progressive individuals and they are starting to buy into what I want to achieve," said Haverhill captain Woodley.

"We are focusing on providing enjoyment, dynamism, intensity and a challenging environment.

"We are trying our best to open up our scope and really push hard to recruit players who love cricket in the surrounding area.

"It would awesome to have new people attend and come to see what cricket in the town is all about.

"We have a second ground on its way, so this is a great opportunity to join a growing and local club."

Training sessions run from 7pm to 9pm for 12 weeks at Samuel Ward Upper School in the Sports Barn, with the first session on Monday free to new players.

For more Information, email haverhillcc@outlook.com, call 01440 761575 or visit www.haverhill-cricketclub.co.uk.

Looking forward: Haverhill captain Joe Woodley is optimistic for the club's future.

MICHAEL Shinn is delighted to see Haverhill Rovers exceeding the expectations he had when he first took over as manager.

The club were sitting in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division relegated zone when Shinn was appointed to the role and have since climbed to a mid-table position.

But while he was always confident the squad was better than their position in the table suggested, Shinn admitted he did not expect them to progress as quickly as they have.

"I was always confident the squad

Shinn pleased with Rovers progress was good enough, but we're doing a bit better than I expected us to be doing at this stage," said Shinn.

"We've played several of the top teams quite early on in the project and we've competed well, now it's a case of competing against them in the long term.

"To start with, we've got to be looking at breaking into the top eight and then attacking the top six."

Meanwhile, Ben Cowling feels Haverhill Borough are primed to kick on in the second half of the season.

Borough are in the top six of the First Division and Cowling is looking for them to keep moving forwards.

"The FA competitions were the story of the first half of the season," said Cowling.

"Unfortunately, we picked up a lot of injuries and that affected our league form a bit, but most of them are back now.

"We've got the First Division Cup semi-final coming up as well, and we'd like to win that."

Rovers travel to Kirkley & Pakefield tomorrow, while Borough are at home to Downham Town.
